Getting started

TRAIL TOWN ASSESSMENT PROCESS

A Trail Town assessment is a community-wide effort of key trail supporters and the public. It takes about a half-day to complete.

A core group of volunteers will help with sign-ins, and an experienced facilitator will lead the discussion (ideally a 3rd party.)

You'll split into groups, with 1 volunteer leading each team, and head through different parts of town, or to the trailhead. (The walks may take about 2 hours.) Each person should fill out the assessment and take notes along the way.

Don't know an answer? It's okay to leave it blank. Is it complicated? (These hefty questions often are!) Write in any explanations, clarifications or notes in the margins.

Return to the meeting space to discuss your assessment questions: What are your town's strengths? Are you visitor-friendly? Cyclist-friendly? What opportunities do you have to improve, and create a welcoming atmosphere?

This assessment will help you take stock of your town's assets, but you also need to research your potential visitors. Your trail market may vary greatly from another area's. Not every town needs the same amenities, so don't rush to fill in every gap you find. This is a guide, not a blueprint.

But you can still use it to outline a plan: Start to identify some easy, visible projects you can start with. Early wins will keep the momentum going. Set some long-term goals, too.

After the event, an organizer will compile a final report for the community.

- Is there an opportunity for new "share the road" streets?

Sidewalks

YES NO

- Are the sidewalks in good (smoothly bikeable & safely walkable) shape?
- Are the sidewalks ADA accessible?

BUSINESS/SERVICES AUDIT

The following few pages will guide you through a checklist of your town's businesses and services.

There is no magic formula for what a trail town has to have, but looking at what you have and what you don't might help give you some ideas about opportunities in your business district.

In addition to checkmarking whether a service is available, mark whether it's available on Saturdays and Sundays, too— these will likely be peak times for trail visitors.

YES NO SAT SUN

If you want to dig deeper: make note of whether services are available late on weekdays (another key time for trail traffic), or whether they're only available seasonally.
